STATE OF WASHINGTON, OFFICE OF ATTORNEY GENERAL,
OLYMPIA, January 9, 1911.

(Opinion No. 1.)

Hon. I. M. Howell, Secretary of State, Olympia, Washington:

DEAR SIR:—Yours of this date received, which reads as follows:

"As it is thought by some advisable to enroll the bills and keep the legislative journals of this session with a book typewriter, I will thank you for an immediate opinion of legality and advisability of this step."

Section 11, article II, of the constitution, reads in part as follows:

"Each house shall keep a journal of its proceedings and publish the same, except such parts as require secrecy * * *"

Section 9, article II, of the constitution, provides:

"Each house may determine the rules of its own proceedings *

* *"

Each house has prepared rules in which they provide that enrolled and engrossed bills shall be presented to the governor and filed with the secretary of state; but the rules do not prescribe whether said bills shall be prepared upon the typewriter or written with pen and ink.

As the constitution does not prescribe in what manner the journals shall be kept, and as there is no law providing that said bills shall be written with pen and ink, it is my opinion that they may be prepared on the typewriter, and that the journals may be kept with a book typewriter.

Further than this, it is my opinion that it would be advisable to make this change, as the work can be done much more rapidly and economically, and compared much more readily and easily if so kept.

Yours very respectfully,

W. P. BELL, Attorney General.

On motion of Mr. Dickson, the resolution was referred to the committee on rules and order.

RESOLUTIONS.

By Mr. Campbell:

Whereas, There was enacted into law at the last session of the legislature what is known as the "Local Option Law," giving to the various communities of the state, the absolute right within their respective communities to permit or prohibit the sale of intoxicating liquor; and

Whereas, Such law being responsive to the will of the people in the various communities gives it that moral support to make its provisions enforceable instead of farcical; and

Whereas, Said "Local Option Law" has been in operation but a few months and as yet has been tried, or attempted to be tried in but few communities of this state, and its application not sufficiently tested to point out its general defects, if any; and

Whereas, The consideration of such subject at the last session of the legislature, engendered strife among the members of the legislature, created factions, coloring and interfering with the consideration of other legislation, against the best interests and common good of the whole state; and

Whereas, It is the earnest desire of the members of this legislature of the State of Washington, to proceed with the business before them with that dispatch, decorum, and good judgment that yields only efficiency, economy and advancement of the general welfare of the people of this great state; and

Whereas, That the interests of the people require that no factional strife or political alignment be permitted to interfere or thwart the consideration of other important legislation to come before this House at this session; Therefore

Be it resolved by the House of Representatives of the Twelfth Legislature of the State of Washington:

That the best interests of the state demand that no further legislation be had relative to the regulation and sale of intoxicating liquors at this session; and be it further

RESOLUTION.

By Mr. Kennedy:

WHEREAS, Honorable John Harte McGraw, the second governor of the State of Washington and one of its most useful citizens, died at his home in Seattle on the 23d day of June, 1910, and the state thereby suffered the loss of an intrepid and wise leader of its patriotic citizens, therefore, in order that a just tribute of respect for his character may be preserved in the archives of the state, be it

Resolved by the legislature of the State of Washington, That, by his election to the office of governor the people evinced wisdom in recognizing the well-earned reputation of Honorable John Harte McGraw, as a faithful public servant, obedient to the law and steadfast in its enforcement without discrimination as to the persons affected. That, during his term as chief executive of the state, from 1893 to 1897, Governor McGraw merited the approbation of all good citizens and the gratitude of the state by his wise and firm exercise of the power of his office and by his endeavors to promote the public welfare, and that having served his country well as governor, he afterwards during the remainder of his life, from choice, occupied the station of a private citizen and as a citizen he continued with unabated zeal to devote his energy to the accomplishment of tasks, voluntarily undertaking to enhance the prosperity and happiness of all the people.

On motion of Mr. Kennedy, the resolution was adopted.

Eulogies on the life of ex-Governor John H. McGraw were delivered by Senators Collins, Anderson and Allen (P. L.), Eulogies on the life of the late Governor Samuel G. Cosgrove were delivered by Senators Stevenson, Bassett, Rosenhaupt and Myers, and Representatives Halsey and Garrecht.

Addresses in memoriam were made by Senators Bowen and Hammer, and Messrs. Tonkin, Dickson and McNeely on the life of Senator J. J. Smith, and by Senator Allen (F. J.) and Mr. Moren on the life of Senator Samuel Cameron.

Senator Nichols delivered a memorial address on the life of the late Senator Foster.

Senator Collins spoke as follows:

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen of the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Washington: I esteem it a privilege to be allowed, on this occasion, to say a few simple words by way of sincere eulogy of the late Governor John H. McGraw. Governor McGraw was my personal friend. I knew him twenty-five years ago and it seems to me, gentlemen, that, as I look back upon that time, it was a long, long ways off. I had gone to the State of Washington as a young man to make my home out here in this great state on the shores of this beautiful inland sea. I was young and full of the romance, sentiment and ideals of youth, and Governor McGraw, on account of his viril personality, force and natural qualities of leadership, immediately attracted my attention and caught my boyish admiration. Governor McGraw was a man who knew neither physical nor moral fear. He was a prince of good fellows and yet withal a keen politician, but not so much of a politician or a good fellow, but that he put his duty as a public official always before his good fellowship and his obligations as a statesman before his politics or expediency.

Governor McGraw believed that the office of governor of a great state like this should be the reward of the highest citizenship and should only be successfully sought after by men who had the highest ideals of what was due the people from a public official. Having such ideals of what was required in that exalted position, he brought to the office of governor the best and sincerest energies of his mind, body and conscience, and his career as governor of the State of Washington will show that he honored that high position and was in turn honored by the office of governor, as few of the chief executives of this state have been.

Governor McGraw was not a strict church man, but he was a man of high principles and, I believe I can say of him truthfully, what can be said of but few men—that he was a just man. Just to his friends, seeing their faults but yet always, notwithstanding their faults, true and loyal to those who had once obtained his friendship. Just to his enemies, seeing their good characteristics and giving them credit for the honesty of their opinions, and yet always a hard, and sometimes a bitter fighter, but he always fought honorably and in the open and if it is true, as has been said by a great poet, "That only the actions of the just smell sweet and blossom in the dust," then the name of Governor McGraw will always be held, by those whose privilege it was to know him and by their children, in sweet and fragrant memory.

Senator Anderson spoke as follows:

Mr. President: To be requested by you to say a few words in tribute of the memory and character of a distinguished son of Washington, is a privilege and an honor which I deeply appreciate, and it is with a feeling of peculiar reverence that I approach to the sad duty of this occasion.

I never personally knew, nor had I ever met Governor John H. McGraw, but not necessary is it that personal knowledge should be had to pay tribute to great men whose lives are interwoven in the progressive history of a great commonwealth.

The interlining of the illumined pages of the history of our state during his life, and wherein he had a part in the making, show him to have been a man of utmost loyalty to friends, mayhap to a fault and to the causes he espoused. He was a man of convictions with the courage to promulgate and defend them; a man of absolute integrity and honesty; a pioneer, always foremost in all movements in the upbuilding and progression of our state, he made his influence felt and left his mark.

Governor McGraw's career has been altogether admirable and eventful. He was by nature endowed as a leader among men and the story of his life is one, in deed, which we all might be proud to emulate. Every lineament of his inspiring countenance was an index of the strong character and personality of the man who has often brought victory, honor and achievement out of chaos and conflict, and whose life, character and success is a prominent part of the history of this state.

Mr. President: It is not my purpose to attempt in this effort to adequately portray to your minds a true picture of this grand man and statesman, for I am deeply sensible of my inability to do justice to his memory. You will, therefore, bear with me in this feeble effort. Whose memory can you call to mind bespeaking a career more worthy of reverence and praise? We have here an honest man, a man of signal ability, a man of untiring energy; a man who, by his unselfish efforts, has arisen from a life of obscurity and abject poverty to the highest place in the confidence of the people of this great state.

Governor McGraw was born at Barker Plantation, Penobscot county, Maine. He left home to battle with life for himself at the early age of fourteen years. He went bravely forth unequipped by education, but undaunted, notwithstanding, and relying solely upon his own sterling qualities for success, which sooner or later was sure to be his. In spite of all disadvantages under which he labored, he succeeded, not only in maintaining himself, but soon, by his perseverance, became manager of a general merchandise store. It seems, however, that he was oft destined to be overtaken by fate. He suffered business reverses, as a result of business depression, and then came to Seattle for a new start. He arrived there in December of 1876, a total stranger, but soon counted among his warm friends and supporters the men highest in the private and political life of that city and of this state. He was modest and unassuming, but his friends appreciated his worth and urged him to become their servant in many important positions. He served them and the state well until finally he was called by his countrymen to take over the reins at the helm of state. Every step in the splendid career of this man is known as an achievement, whereby he has builded for himself a lasting monument which will ever adorn the pages of the history of our fair state.

Senator Allen (P. L.) spoke as follows:

Governor Hay and Members of the Twelfth Legislature: I consider myself particularly fortunate in having enjoyed a close personal friendship with Governor McGraw during the last ten years of his life.

For the previous ten or more years, through his terms of office as sheriff of King county and Governor of the State of Washington, I was an admirer of his indomitable nerve and splendid fighting qualities.

But it was only after his return from the frozen north that our intimate friendship began and I grew to admire and love the genial kind-hearted man; the man who, having fought the troubrous battles of politics and braved the rigorous winters of Alaska and won over all contenders, seemed to desire nothing but the peace and quiet due to the successful man of his years.

While his eye would flash and the old fighting spirit show itself at the hint of opposition, whether personal or political, the desire for the rest he was entitled to usually prevailed and oftentimes has he remarked to me:

"As I grow older, I become mellower; the desire of conflict becomes less and my one aim is to end my days in peace and quiet, in the knowledge that I have wronged no man and in the hope that I may merit the respect and friendship of the people of the State of Washington."

And in that frame of mind he passed away; but he will always live in the hearts of his friends and in the minds of the people of the state as one of Washington's greatest citizens.

Senator Stevenson spoke as follows:

It is well that we pause at times in the rush of business and the stress of political strife to reflect upon the lives of those men who are with us no more, but whose influence has left its impress indelibly stamped upon the state and nation. Our judgments and opinions of men, particularly of those of strong character and strenuous careers, are apt to be influenced more or less by our likes and dislikes. There is nothing so calculated to warp our judgment and estimate of such men as feelings of personal friendship or political prejudice. Men of that type receive their just dues after they have passed from the scene of action and time has healed the wounds of political battle.

But as we stand today, as it were by the river that marks the border of the unknown shore, all feelings of resentment and all prejudice disappear and we are influenced, for the time being at least, only by the higher and nobler sentiments of our nature. Today we come to this chamber to pay our tribute of respect to the memory of those with whom we once associated and mingled in life, but who have now passed the great beyond.

I desire to direct your attention for a few moments to the life and achievements of our late governor, Samuel G. Cosgrove. I deem it an honored privilege to thus pay a tribute of respect to his memory, and express the appreciation of myself and my constituents for his sterling worth and the service he has rendered to the state, both in his private and in his public life. It was a fortunate privilege of mine to know Governor Cosgrove intimately. We were neighbors for more than eighteen years. I knew him well, both as a private citizen and as a public official. No man of my acquaintance possessed stronger traits of character or more distinctive personality. Unflinching in the performance of every duty, uncompromising in his opposition to everything of a dishonest or reprehensible character, he was truly great from every standpoint, but above and beyond all he was a truly good man. His private life was without a blemish. Amid his triumphs and defeats, whether struggling in poverty or bowing to the plaudits of an admiring constituency, amid all the temptations and allurements of political struggle and of position and fame he steadfastly and proudly bore aloft the white plume of a spotless character. The record of his life should be an inspiration to every American boy.

He was born in Tuscarawsa county, Ohio, April 10, 1847; amidst the pioneer environments, Sam Cosgrove laid the foundation of a life of usefulness. As a boy he was energetic and industrious. He loved and respected his parents and contributed his energies to the advancement of the interests and happiness of the family. He early manifested great interest in matters of public weal, entering into the study and discussion of questions affecting the body politic.

When the war clouds of '61 darkened our land and the call to arms was sounded young Cosgrove, then a mere boy of fourteen years, was fired with a patriotic desire to rush to the defense of the flag he so dearly loved, but his age would not permit. Two years later in 1863, when but sixteen years old, young Cosgrove could no longer be restrained and he laid aside his school books and took up the musket in defense of the Union, enlisting in Company E, Fourteenth Ohio Volunteers. The record of that famous regiment and the part young Cosgrove took in its varied operations are matters of history and no doubt familiar to the old soldiers present here today. Mr. Cosgrove served with the regiment until the surrender of Johnson at Holly Springs, North Carolina, and marched with his gallant regiment in the grand review at Washington in July, 1865, where his regiment was mustered out under an order releasing the oldest veteran regiments. He returned to the task of completing his education, entering the Ohio Wesleyan University at Delaware, Ohio, graduating with honors in 1873.

Mr. Cosgrove came to the Pacific coast, settling in Washington in 1883, since which time until the date of his death two years ago, he had been identified with the history and advancement of our great state. He was a member of the constitutional convention and his keen mind and legal training found ready recognition in that gathering of wise and great men, and his wisdom and foresight are stamped upon our constitution and the early history of our state. In 1900, Mr. Cosgrove was a McKinley and Roosevelt elector. In 1904 he was a Roosevelt elector and received 72,000 majority, his personal vote being so large as to unmistakably indicate his popularity.

In 1908 he was elected governor of the state, attaining at last the ambition of a lifetime, but as he stood there at the speaker's desk and repeated what he characterized as "that mysterious oath that no man could explain, but which he knew would make him governor of the State of Washington." Many of you will recall that scene, which drew forth tears of sympathy and thrills of admiration—sympathy for the emaciated form withering beneath the touch of death, and admiration for the dauntless courage with which he hurried from sunny Paso Robles to this capital, braving snow and ice and storm to wear the laurels won in a race so intense as to shorten his life.

The same unquenchable spirit that characterized his closing days served him through his life. The word "defeat" was not in his vocabulary. Even while suffering from physical weakness that would have prostrated many a man of less bravery he battled on with courage and hope. Death was the only obstacle he could not surmount.

On occasions of this character we are brought face to face with that final foe to which all must ultimately surrender. Death makes no distinction between the prince and the pauper. He knocks alike at the palace and hovel. The splendor of place and power cannot ward off his fatal blow.

Just before the battle of Quebec while General Wolfe and his staff were gliding down the River St. Lawrence the general, with that prophetic vision that oftentimes precedes the hour of dissolution, repeated amid the plashing of the oars those beautiful lines from the poet, Gray:

"The boast of heraldry, the pomp of power,
 "And all that beauty, all that wealth e'er gave,
"Await alike the inevitable hour—
 "The paths of glory lead but to the grave."

The general achieved a remarkable victory, but gave up his life on the field of glory.

Governor Cosgrove, according to his own testimony, was fired with an ambition in early life to become the governor of one of the great states of the Union. For twenty years or more he had directed his energies towards securing that coveted prize, not solely for the purpose of achieving the object of his ambition, but to be of service to his state and to his fellow citizens. He sacrificed his life in the tremendous struggle and like Wolfe never lived to enjoy the fruits of his victory. Though the great State of Washington was deprived of his services and of his courage and patriotism the great work has been carried on by others upon whose shoulders his mantle has fallen. Though he has left no record of extensive executive achievement he has left the everlasting impress of a clean, noble, upright, and courageous life.

As these occasions arise and as one by one our friends and companions pass over the great divide we feel a loosening of the ties that bind us here as a strengthening of the golden cord that links us to the great beyond.

Senator Bassett spoke as follows:

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen of the Twelfth Legislature: Ready as I always am to give my word of appreciation for a good citizen, whether with us or passed away, I feel that I am out of place in a gathering like this. I cannot, as can others, lay a garland of eloquence upon the bier of the deceased, nor can I offer the tribute of an intimate friend. I can only say a few plain words and mention some of the inspirations which come to the heart of every true citizen on an occasion like this. My acquaintance with Governor Cosgrove was but brief. It comprised a comparatively few interviews, a little correspondence, a night or two at my home—no more than thousands of citizens have been privileged to have had with him. But, as Robert Ingersoll said of one of his friends, "He made me his friend by being himself mine." I do not think in my entire Washington experience I have met a man who, without a selfish or personal thought of his own, became so quickly and so heartily a helper, and treated all he met in such a spirit of kindness and optimism. This, I am told, was a characteristic of the man. In every walk in life he made it his business to help all in every way possible. Every good deed is a seed which hastens the harvest of universal good. How much can such a life do!

I wish to speak of but two phases of his public life—as a patriot and an educator. Governor Cosgrove entered the army in 1863 at 16 years of age. He postponed his cherished plans for education and incurred the dangers and toils of army life, led on, not only by his love of excitement, but as his future life shows, by a deep-felt desire to serve his country. He served bravely. The war over, he turned his attention to preparation for life, but all through his life he maintained, as perhaps no one in this state did, the spirit of patriotism. The grand army, which he loved so much, and to which he gave so much time and thought, was not with him a social organization of comrades, but the expression of the organized patriotism of the country. He promoted its interests at great expense of time and labor. He contended against his mistakes. He saw in the yearly thinning ranks the imperative need of young recruits to the cause of patriotism. I haven't one word to say against our military service, against our National Guard, against military training in our schools, but should trouble come, the great national protection will be, as to a great extent it was in 1861, the spirit of patriotism in our citizens for which Samuel G. Cosgrove labored, rather than organized military effort.

His other phase of public life which appeals to me most was as an educator. His own education, although more complete than most men can enjoy, came by hard knocks, and was carried on through life. After leaving school he became principal of a high school and carried his love of knowledge there. For years one of the leading men of the state, he found time to serve at the head of his local school board. The school system of the town of Pomeroy is said to be one of the best school systems in any city of that size in the state, and it is his monument. He always helped the education of others, and for the last four or five years of his life was a regent of the state university. He found the university unworthy of a state with a smaller population than we had at that time. At his death he left it fully up to the standard of a state of larger population. Many men strive for positions of honor and emolument. Few are content to fill the useful, unpaid, much criticised positions on our charitable and educational boards. I know of no class of public men in the state who are doing more in quantity and in effect for the good of our state without compensation than our regents of our university. It will never outgrow the impress of the loving and faithful work of Governor Cosgrove.

While others who knew him better can speak of his personal life, I wish to depart from the custom of these occasions and speak briefly of one or two of his traits which we can imitate.

I think his life shows the value of well directed ambition. He started as a young man, with no heritage but his education and his principles and resolved to be somebody. I understand he many years ago fixed his eyes on the goal he attained. A long journey truly it was from ideal to achievement, but a journey straightforward, unmoved by fear or favor, by waves of popular clamor or by well appearing sophistries. Truly a great inspiration, still fresh in mind, for our young men. Without unduly pushing his own claims to office he acknowledged in his life that the public have a claim upon our best men. Too many say, as is true, they cannot afford to give their time to the public. We cannot adopt surer means to give leadership to the unworthy. The man whose career we are considering gave the best he had to the public. The consideration was not money, for politics cost him more than he gained. It was the bringing into later life of the principle that carried him earlier into the battlefield. Let every citizen who has been called to serve his state give pure, disinterested, faithful service, if he would follow in the footprints of Governor Cosgrove.

He magnified the community in which he lived; fitted himself for a higher position and greater surroundings. He clung to his earlier home and helped to make his town influential. We hear much of the exclusive prominence of the city in public affairs. Here was a citizen of a small community in a quiet county, removed from sources of influence, confining his business life to narrow limits, at once actively interested in his own town, and a power in the affairs of state. The small town lacks influence because its citizens narrow their own horizon. The state is hospitable to men of honor and ideas from wherever they come. The path that he trod is open to all. Small towns, small counties, small people even, can have their influence felt. It is not so much what we are, or what we have, as the use we make of the opportunities given us.

The question comes before every candidate for office to what extent should moral forces be considered. Governor Cosgrove's success two years ago showed that moral forces counted. He did not win success by exceptional ability, by the arts of an orator, by subservience to corporations or to demagogues, by compromise of principle. The people knew him as one of themselves. His election was the victory of the highest moral forces of the state. His weapons were the accumulated power of twenty-five years of faithful and honest life and service, and our citizens showed they were effective. The election of 1908, like every election of its kind, added immensely to the strength of the better elements of popular government in Washington. Every such man in power adds a little to the seed which will sometime bear fruit in a harvest of universal good.

I remember, as do the other speakers, most distinctly the tragic inauguration of two years ago. I hope I am not breaking confidence if I mention my interview with him during the same day. Summoned by the governor to his private car, which seemed almost like a death chamber, he told me he had summoned me to see him perform an act as governor as he signed his name with his trembling hand. He spoke of one or two reforms which he longed to accomplish, and pledged me, as he doubtless did others of his friends, to help carry them on in his absence. The thought of that hour will always be with me, and the influence be as powerful as almost any in life. I saw then, as I had never appreciated before, that this man longed for office, not for its value to himself, but for the service which he could render to the state and the forces of good morals everywhere.

His life work is over; nothing more can be initiated by him. His monument is before us in work that he has accomplished and the young men and young women whom he has aided to lives of usefulness.

Floating within our reach is the mystic bond of his influence, which we can grasp today and in the future for the benefit of others and the uplift of ourselves.

As we loved our departed friend, as we honor our state, as we desire to be true to ourselves, I call upon each member of this legislature during the coming session and their future public life, to be a little more faithful to trust, a little truer to the interests of the individual and the morals of our state than they would be had this leader of us all never lived and died among us.

Senator Rosenhaupt spoke as follows:

In time-honored custom we meet today to pay our humble tribute of respect to him who was a soldier and a man. Samuel G. Cosgrove in earnest ambition had aspired all through life to drain his cup of nectar and it touched his lips in the entrance of death. The people of this great commonwealth, appreciating his splendid qualities and sterling manhood, elected him to that position which had been his great desire and named him governor. But as he took the oath of office the scepter fell from his nerveless grasp, the power with which he was vested departed and Cosgrove was no more.

I had the pleasure of his acquaintance for many years, and had enjoyed many an occasion with him, made pleasant by his scintillating humor. To know him was to love him. His was a rugged character. Within that wall of human flesh virtue was so intrenched that wrong and viciousness never found a welcome. He had fought his country's battles upon the field of war. When the nation appealed for men in the dark days of the rebellion he heard the cry and carried his gun and knapsack to the front. The civil war was over and peace spread its wings, but the battles of a country are never over and Governor Cosgrove always fought for his country. He never fought under cover. He had nothing to hide. His views, strong and virile, were known and in his views the people were his constant solace and his care. He sought for truth, he sought for righteousness, and ever as he found them he sent them forth and tempered them with justice. His was a kindly nature. He had a smile of gladness and a word of welcome for all. His heart and mind went hand in hand. As he traveled upon the highways and byways of life he paused at the resting places to meet and greet his fellow men, grasp each by the hand and call him brother. He was a statesman. Before the primary election which named him as the candidate he delivered a speech in the city of Seattle which was the best political speech ever made in the state. In it he portrayed his character, his ideals, his purpose and his hopes, and to those who, students of public affairs, desire a masterly presentation of political fact, this address must always stand a model.

He was a hero. We are a nation of hero worshippers. We love the deeds of the daring and the brave. I recall as if but yesterday when he returned from California to take his oath of office. In fancy I again see the joint session of the legislature to meet their chief. He had made the trip in response to the call of duty with the knowledge that it meant almost certain death. I see a man small in stature, frail in physique but strong in purpose, come walking down the aisle of this same house, supported by the sturdy arms of his loving friends. I hear the rounds of applause and then a sea of heads are bowed in silence. I hear him take the oath—that strange thing, he says, which makes him in truth and in fact governor of the state. Then I see him take his leave and every eye was wet with tears. Taken all in all, it was the saddest sight I ever saw. He had said that he had looked over the valley of the shadow of death and peeped beyond, and as he left he bid all Godspeed and then he wended his own way to that faraway land of which we know not and of which in silence we hope and dream, then hope again. His was that strange blend of character which always remains with you. To those who knew him he has not gone, but resting and feeling that his precepts are always with us, we say to him, dear friend:

Good night, good night;
Until the shadows in their endless flight
Kiss morning's dawn—until then,
Good night.

Senator Myers spoke as follows :

Fresh in our memories and, as it were yesterday, to our vision, we saw the form of an emaciated man totter up this aisle, upon whose thin throat were clutched the cold, bony fingers of death. In the presence of his countrymen, with the chief justice of the supreme court of Washington, he held aloft his wasted right hand, and with hollow voice, like one coming forth from the tombs of death, promised under oath to his God and ours to support the constitution of the United States and the constitution of the State of Washington.

The goal of a life's effort had been reached; step by step the summit of the mountain climb of life had been conquered. The climax to boyhood's dream had been realized. Samuel G. Cosgrove, of Pomeroy, Garfield county, was now governor of the State of Washington, the framing of whose constitution (the charter of our liberties) had his wisdom and the help of his hand.

We have here the most remarkable example of political perseverance and tenacity of purpose that can be cited in the Pacific northwest. Samuel G. Cosgrove had a political ambition with which he had wrestled for a lifetime. He was often compelled to retire with defeated hopes, but each time accepted the cruel decrees of fate with philosophic cheerfulness and remained loyal and true to his party and the powers that had unmanned his fondest plans. In politics, then as now, men were not always true to him, but with that charity that Burns had when he said, "To step aside is human," he forgot and forgave their perfidies. The world admires a self-made man, and especially a man who has clung to a purpose or ideal—a man who has by indomitable pluck battered down all opposition and carried his purpose to a successful conclusion.

Like Jacob of old, who wrestled with an adversary all night long, and at the breaking of day would not let him go unless he receive a blessing, "Henceforth thou shalt not be called Jacob, but Israel. As a prince thou hast had power with God and man and hast prevailed."

Like Columbus, who had applied for aid in his theory of a western passage to India, applied to Italy, Portugal, England and Spain, and would not be put off by temporary defeat, but pursued his purpose until aid was given and he was proclaimed discoverer and viceroy of a new world.

Like Marconi in 1890 advanced the theory that the electric current would readily pass through any substance and when started in a given direction would continue without any sort of conductor. He wrestled with that problem until now the world's news is heralded headlong through space and is recorded hundreds of miles away, as a carbon copy.

Like Edison, who wrestled with the application of electricity until, as a grand climax, the incandescent light, which now is a slave to our convenience and touch, was produced.

By mathematics we may be able to measure volume and space and find unknown quantities, but who can measure the value of example. That comes from a life devoted to a high purpose and the summum bonum of a commonwealth—a life like that of Samuel G. Cosgrove. Although the remains of Samuel G. Cosgrove rest in the silent city of the dead on yonder hill—to go back and resolve themselves again into elements of earth—the memory and example of his pure and unselfish life will remain upon the hearts of his countrymen. The teeth of time may gnaw away the foundation of the marble shaft that marks his grave, but it cannot destroy the salutary effect of a lofty character, of a life devoted to the highest and noblest purpose, a life like that of Samuel G. Cosgrove.

"Twilight and evening bell,
And after that the dark;
And may there be no sadness of farewell,
When I embark.

For though, far from out the bourne of time and place,
The flood may bear me far,
I hope to see my pilot face to face,
When I have crossed the bar."

Mr. Halsey spoke as follows:

Mr. Speaker: An occasion like this is fraught with sadness, especially so, when we recall the pathetic scene enacted in this chamber two years ago, when with tear-dimmed eyes we saw the central figure pale and emaciated, bravely defying death to take the oath that made him governor of Washington.

It reminds us, also, that we, too
"Are drifting, slowly drifting
With the changing wares of time,
Every scene around us shifting
And each moment more sublime,
As we near the great eternal
Passing on to the supernal
Through the grave."

And more than this it brings to mind the two great mysteries of man's sojourn on earth, "whence he comes, and whither he goes." Here rocks the cradle, there yawns the grave. We know what lies between; before and after is a sealed book, the key to which is lost in the mists of the Infinite. Between those shadowy goal posts that we pass by unheeding, we see

"An infant on its mother's breast,
A sturdy boy at play,
A youth by maiden fair caressed,
A stalwart man by care oppressed,
An old man silver gray.
"Yes, all of life we know."

Infancy is but a struggle for physical existence. Then comes the happy, careless freedom of childhood, the halcyon days of life. The horizon of youth is spanned by the rainbow of promise with its dreams of worldly honor and fame. As we reach the stage of manhood, the rainbow is beginning to fade, as we realize that the world is chary of its honors and bestows the laurel wreaths on but the few, and if perchance we reach the sunny plateau of the winter of life, we grasp the fact that the hope that has beckoned us through the years has nothing to give but the apples of Sodom that turn to ashes on the lips. We have learned by

"Experience taught by suffering
The lesson dark and drear,
That each sparkling joy has its sad alloy
And hope is chilled by fear."

The rainbow has vanished, the shadows deepen and night comes; but not rayless night, for adient the gloom there flashes a gleam; the last great hope of all, the hope of immortality.

The desire to be remembered is inherent in the human mind. Solon, the great law giver of Athens, expressed this desire when he wrote:

"Let not a death unwept, unhonored,
Be the melancholy fate allotted me,
But those who love me living, when I die
Still keep some cherished memory."

It is love for the living that remembers the dead, and, Mr. President, it is the love that Samuel G. Cosgrove inspired in the hearts of those who knew him that will keep his memory green; for, sir, he was possessed of those manly traits that demanded respect and inspired love. In point of time, my acquaintance with him was limited; living in the county adjoining my own, he was a frequent and welcome visitor in our courts, where I knew him as an able lawyer. The last conversation I had with him was shortly after the direct primary law was passed, when he said to me, "I am going to run for governor; the direct primary gives me a chance and I believe I will be nominated and elected." I did not see him again until he was inaugurated in this chamber, where, weak as he was, and standing in the very shadow of death, he showed some of his old humor. His success in the campaign proved that he possessed the trust and confidence of the people; and when he was stricken, the great heart of the people responded and went out to him, and stayed with him during his heroic struggle with death, and helped him to ward off the dread angel until he had reached the goal of his ambitions. He tasted the cup of triumph, but death robbed him of the fruits of his victory.

Governor Cosgrove was a man in the true sense of the word; a man loved by his family, his neighbors and his friends. His influence was felt in the formative period of our state.

"He needs not the praise of the love-written record,
The name and the epitaph graven on stone;
The things that he lived for, let them tell the story,
Only remembered by what he has done."

Mr. Garrecht spoke as follows:

When the immortal and incomparable bard of Avon penned the lines:

"The evil that men do lives after them,
The good is oft interred with their bones."

he doubtless gave expression to the sentiments with which his day and generation viewed the passing of contemporaries. It is a far cry back to Shakespeare and the sixteenth century and times have changed since then. Now the pleasing eulogist in speaking of the departed keeps uppermost in mind the thought suggested by the funeral service of a popular lodge of the day:

"We write their faults upon the sand, their virtues upon the tablets of love and memory."

Thus does the pendulum of assertion swing ever past the truth and man's memory is either distorted by flattery or by calumny defamed.

However, when we come to speak of the life and character of Samuel Goodlove Cosgrove, there is no occasion to depart from statements of plain and simple fact, for he himself would not have had it otherwise. He was not one of those unapproachable figures wrapped in the solitude of their own magnificence, but a man of artless manner and simple, honorable worth. Besides, of what avail are titles and distinctions after man's career is closed?

Can storied urn or animated bust,
Back to its mansion call the fleeting breath?
Can honor's voice provoke the silent dust,
Or flattery soothe the dull, cold ear of death?

Although Governor Cosgrove combatted with force, power and ability, political beliefs and opinions which have won my adherence, he, nevertheless, accorded to opponents the same candor and sincerity that he claimed for himself, and while it has been said, and truly said, that he was an intense partisan, in such hour as this all bitterness is forgotten.

After all, what do we care what were the political beliefs of Washington, or Hamilton, of Jefferson, or Jackson? Nothing. We revere their memories and honor them simply because they loved their country and in their own way, according to their own theories, tried to better its condition. Not because of their party affiliations, but because of their record and services do we pay them homage.

I feel that, at this time, it would be presumptuous in me even to attempt to place any estimate of the character and services of Governor Cosgrove side by side with the eloquent eulogies which have fallen from the lips of his personal and political associates, and I shall not try to do so. But to one single characteristic of his nature I do wish for a moment to refer. Others have alluded to it, but it will bear well the emphasis of repetition.

The poet has so aptly expressed the thought:

As in a song there is one note
To which all others lead,
One chord on which the longing soul
Would fain forever feed,

So in each pure, harmonious life,
That longs to do and be,
Some thought, or word, or act shall set
The everlasting key.

So it was with the life of Governor Cosgrove. When but a young man, scarcely of age, and just out of the Union army, he registered in his heart the high resolve to be the chief executive of one of the great states of this nation.

The fulfillment of this design became the dream and hope of his ambitious life and his subsequent career furnishes a splendid example of brilliant success won by persistent determination and a strict adherence to a fixed purpose.

His tremendous determination and iron will nerved him through the tedious journey from Paso Robles to Olympia, where in this room, in the presence of a tear-stained, sympathetic people, he took the oath of office that fulfilled the ambition of his life.

While it is pathetic to consider that the scepter of office should pass from his hand almost at the moment it was grasped, still it is a pleasure to think that he was spared for this supreme moment.

Who can fathom the plan of Divine Providence? And who shall say that it was not for the best? Better thus to die, while yet upon the hilltop of hope, glittering with the vistas of anticipated triumph, than to live on and go down into the dark valley of humiliation and defeat.

Governor Cosgrove died at a time that left his fame secure; his name is linked with that of a state destined to wield an important influence in the future of the republic. He was one of the constitutional fathers that helped to fashion for it the garments of statehood. He was the first governor chosen after the inauguration of the primary ballot system. The notable part he took at important epochs will associate his name forever with the history of the great State of Washington.

And finally, what a subject for meditation is death.

There is a sound like a sob when the ripe fruit falls to the sod beneath the tree, and that is all. The sun shines and the shadows fall, and the winds whisper through the branches as before. The time of bud and blossom comes again and again, and the snow's white mantle covers the graves of those we love. This awful indifference of nature to change and death chills us with mystery, as with drooping spirits we strive to unravel the query of the ages:

"If a man die, shall he live again?"

Generations upon generations of the sons and daughters of men have come and gone since that soul-stirring question was first propounded. Science has been appealed to in vain for an answer, and all the longings of love win no response. But as we stand beside the grave of buried love, when the overwhelming burst of grief is calmed into pensive meditation as we listen in the silence which surrounds the tomb, we cannot fail to hear the voice of Faith in accents clear proclaim:

"There is no death!"

Senator Hammer spoke as follows:

Mr. President: As one of only three members of the present Senate who sat in the Senate of the State of Washington with the late Senator J. J. Smith, I beg your indulgence for a moment while we turn back the pages of time and hurriedly scan the record of our late brother legislator and friend.

My first acquaintance with Senator Smith was at the session of 1899, he being a member of the House and I of the Senate. During this session a strong friendship sprang up between us which was never broken until the day of his death.

In 1901 he was a member of the Senate and we were seat mates. During this session, one of the most memorable legislative contests was inaugurated in the history of the state, viz.: Railroad rate legislation, which was fiercely waged during this session and the sessions of 1903 and 1905, resulting in the passage of a railroad commission bill.

This contest lasted long and at times waxed bitter, and while we were on opposite sides of this paramount issue, I favoring a railway commission and he opposed, still during all of these troublous times our personal friendship continued, each crediting the other with the same high ideals he claimed for himself. He believing that he was, and no doubt was, representing the sentiments of his constituency, as I was representing the sentiments of my constituency. Senator Smith was president of the Senate during the session of 1903, and I am frank to say that his rulings were fair and impartial, notwithstanding the stress of feeling displayed on the floor of the Senate.

His sudden death was especially sad and untimely, as he was yet young and in the full vigor of his manhood, with the goal of his ambition set high, and had he attained to that ripe age that we all hope to reach, no doubt he would have realized the dreams of his ambition.

He was firm in his convictions, yet most tolerant, which to my mind is at least a symptom of greatness, as he who would be truly great can never be intolerant. A man of strong personality. Uncompromising, yet most courteous, and as a friend and companion, most lovable. He was ambitious, yet not inclined to ride rough shod over the rights and ambitions of others, but in that friendly spirit of contention which takes away the stings common to intense rivalry.

As one who knew the senator well and who had many times taken his measure as a legislator and citizen, I am proud to give his memory that highest and noblest encomium: He was a man.

Mr. Tonkin spoke as follows:

Mr. Speaker: I rise to the performance of the duty devolving upon me with but the single desire to say a word that may in some slight sense be worthy of him in whose memory this service is held.

Dr. Smith was my friend in all the word implies, and I would that the power were mine to write my eulogy of him in letters of living light that all the world might know him as my ideal of the manly man and loyal friend.

Dr. James J. Smith was born at Salt Sulphur Springs, Union county, West Virginia, June 5, 1869. He was educated in Concord, West Virginia, and at the Long Island College and hospital in Brooklyn, and moved to the State of Washington during the year 1891. For the past fifteen years he has been a prominent and influential figure in commercial and political life, and by his untiring zeal and energy and years of service in the people's interest has written his name deep on the pages of the state's history.

Dr. Smith served as a member of the House of Representatives during the legislature of 1899. In 1900 he was elected to fill the unexpired term of the Hon. John Wooding, and served in the state Senate in the session of 1901. In 1902 he was re-elected to the Senate and served in the sessions of 1903 and 1905, being elected president of the Senate in the session of 1903, a vacancy in the presidency of the Senate having occurred through the death of Governor John R. Rogers and the elevation of Lieutenant Governor McBride to the office of governor.

Dr. Smith entertained the laudable ambition of filling the position of governor of the State of Washington, and it is to be said to his credit that he was preeminently qualified to discharge the duties of this high office. During the campaign of 1904 there was every prospect that this ambition would be gratified, and ardent friends and admirers from every section of the state tendered him their earnest and loyal support. During this campaign, however, the commercial interests of King county were asking for the election of a King county man to the United States senate, and, as it was deemed inadvisable for the county to ask for both a governor and United States senator. Dr. Smith very generously, and without hesitation, buried his personal ambitions in the interests of harmony and withdrew from the race, loyally supporting King county in her desire for a United States senator, the result being the election of the Honorable Sam H. Piles, of Seattle, to a seat in the senate.

During the year 1891 Dr. Smith accepted the position of resident physician at Franklin for the Pacific Coast Company's mines, a position in which he demonstrated great skill and performed his duties in so kindly an able a manner as to win the undying affection of the people in that section of the state.

Dr. Smith moved to Enumclaw in the year 1901, where he subsequently married Miss Selma Hanson. Nearly every man in public life in Washington took part, either in bidding him goodbye when he started on his honeymoon trip to southern Europe seven years ago, or welcomed him home upon his return; for despite the fact that he was a man of firm decision and active participation in politics, he had few enemies, and countless friends.

In his legislative conduct Dr. Smith was a follower of his conscience and thoughtful more of the permanent good of the people than to receive the temporary plaudits of his fellow members or constituency. It sometimes occurs to you and to me, in the pressure of a present and temporary influence, to overlook the future needs of the people whose interests we are sent to conserve. In our inexperience, or desire to please a friend, or through carelessness, and sometimes perhaps in a momentary weakness, we yield to the persuasive voice at hand and forget the larger interests of the morrow. It was not so with Senator Smith. Whether seated with his colleagues on the floor of the Senate, or presiding over the deliberations of that august body, he was always the patriotic and conscientious legislator, always the fearless leader, always the impartial and fair-minded presiding officer.

Clean in his conceptions of manliness and honor, firm in the performance of duty, undaunted in courage, dependable as the stars in his loyalty to the demands of friendship, kingly in his kindness, royal in his devotion to truth, knightly in his respect for woman, gentle as a mother in his ministrations to the sick, a dutiful son, a devoted husband, an upright citizen, a patriotic lover of his country—I call upon you, my friends, and all who knew him, to join with me in paying to him the tribute of King David over the death of his friend Abner when he said, “A prince and a great man has fallen this day in Israel.”

Dr. Smith died at his home in Enumclaw on November 12, 1910, at the age of forty-one years, in the strength and prime of his manhood. Like the blotting out of the full-orbed sun in the splendor of its noon-tide glory was the untimely taking off of our friend and brother, and yet, perhaps, I mistake in the use of the word untimely, for what seems out of place to us with the limited visions of earth and time, may be but the perfected wisdom of the great Father who, in the boundlessness of His love and with all eternity comprised in His plans, sometimes calls our loved ones away when the cry of our hearts is that they remain at our sides to cheer and inspire us with their presence.

Gentlemen, I can offer but one explanation to you, and one word of cheer and comfort to the bereaved loved ones of our absent friend, and that word springs out of faith and confidence in God. I believe that he who stands sacred and sainted in our memories today, and in whose honor we dedicate these services, has gone to perform a higher, broader, and nobler work than was possible in the environment of time and the limitations of a mortal body. The prow of his vessel has but turned from the narrow channels of life here, to the broad oceans of a boundless eternity.

Since the first moment when the first mother looked into the face of her dead child, and the first widow mourned the absence of her husband, has the sorrowful cry of lonely hearts beat against the throne of God and hungry and unsatisfied souls have craved an explanation of death; and no answer comes back save that of inspiration and the promise that sometime, somewhere, we shall know that the Master has done all things well. Until then, I can only say that you and I, and all who feel the loss of our friend and brother, must bow in submission to the Father's will, and with patience and courage, with self denial and manly fortitude, fight well the battle of life, and to the measure of our ability follow the worthy example of such noble men as Senator Smith; that when the call for us is heard we may look unflinchingly into the face of death's herald untroubled by the sting of conscience over unperformed duties, and confident in the belief that out in the future there lies a path that leads unto the perfect day.

The good and true who precede us in the journey to the grave always leave the imperishable influence of a noble and worthy example, and as I review in grateful memory today the many kindly deeds and unselfish life of Doctor Smith, I am fully persuaded that of him it may be truthfully said that, "being dead, he yet speaketh."

Dr. Smith, as his title implies, was a practicing physician. Though well skilled in his profession, and the peer in medical knowledge of any of his calling, he did not seek the walks of life where wealth gave promise of large rewards for his services. He thought not of himself nor of personal ambitions in the line of advancement, or the social pleasures and advantages of a large city. Though well endowed by birth and education to grace the highest circles of social life and culture, he none the less followed the dictates of a kindly and loving heart and cheerfully, gladly, willingly, gave his talent and service to the working classes in a mining town where he could not hope for large returns in material wealth, or the higher and fuller enjoyments incident to city life. These to him were not the end and aim of life. To him came the call to minister unto the poor and needy, and bravely and cheerfully as ever knight rode to victory did he enter the lists and seek and find his reward in the joy of service.

And gentlemen of the legislature, will you allow me to say that it is not the ordinary, average man of the medical profession who can always adequately and fully supply the needs of a mining town; for it is not only the ordinary ills of the body he is called upon to cure, but also at times the unspeakable agony of soul and spirit; when the loved ones who left their firesides so cheerfully in the morning lie torn and bleeding in the bowels of the earth, and the power of man is helpless to send relief or to go to the rescue. At such times it is not so much the skill of the physician to cure bodily ills that is needed, as the man of heart, with deep love and wise words of brotherly sympathy. I live in that community; I know Doctor Smith's life and works among that people, and my heart goes out in grateful love to his memory as I say for the people whom I represent and for myself that never was any demand put upon him, either as a physician or as a man, that he did not obey with ready love and with consummate skill in relieving distress. The name of Dr. Smith is precious to us up yonder in the hills, and so long as memory abides, whether in time or eternity, shall we thank God for the blessings bestowed upon us and our children in the priceless services rendered us by our departed friend and brother.

Mr. Dickson spoke as follows:

Mr. Speaker: To the beautiful tributes paid to the memory of the late Dr. J. J. Smith, I desire to add only a few words.

It was with great pleasure that I served in the session of 1903 with him. Dr. Smith had the honor during that session of presiding as president of the Senate, and my acquaintance with him was only in the nature and as a member of the lower house. He had a very attractive and winning personality; his acquaintances speedily became his friends, and the best test of success in this world is the ability to win and hold personal friends. Kindliness of manner, simplicity of speech, sympathy of feeling, were the ordinary traits of his character. His sincerity of character was best demonstrated by his loyalty to his friends and the high estimate which he placed in that characteristic in a man. Personally he was courteous, kind, and generous; a man that success seemed not to have spoiled. By nature he was sunny and cheerful, and the atmosphere about him was always warm, bright and genial. Although possessed of great dignity, he had no frills, and needed no starch to sustain that dignity. Those of us who came to know him best not only respected him, but learned to love him. Of robust physique, it would seem that he had crossed the threshold of a long and useful life. His life work is finished, his pleasant voice is hushed, his feet no longer press the sands along the shores of time; but those of us with whom he mingled will, until our last day be grateful for having known such a character; and I believe we are all broader, truer, and better men because our friend for a time sojourned with us.

Let us hope that his spirit abides 'neath fairer skies where sweeter flowers bloom and gentler breezes blow and where strains of heavenly music thrill the soul.

Mr. McNeely spoke as follows:

I am called upon today to speak briefly in memory of my late friend and neighbor, Dr. J. J. Smith. The gentlemen from King and Kittitas have covered the history of his life so fully that it leaves little for me to add. However, I wish to touch upon one or two characteristics of Dr. Smith, that are not as familiar to the general public as to we, who were his friends and neighbors.

Dr. Smith lived in Enumclaw from 1901 to the date of his death. And as a citizen of that young and growing community, was looked up to as the leading citizen in that part of King county. And in all public enterprises for the upbuilding or improvements in the southern portion of King county it was with one accord that all of the citizens turned to him for leadership and accomplishment of the desired object.

His standing, his influence, and his labor invariably produced results. And while the entire State of Washington has suffered a great loss in the death of Dr. Smith, yet the particular community that will miss him most, and suffer the greatest loss, is his home city; his life however filled with affairs that contributed to the general welfare of the community, yet left him time to be a kind, loving, considerate husband and father. His home life was ideal; and to the members of his family who are left to mourn his departure from the fireside, the knowledge of his sterling worth while in life to his city, county and state, in a measure will be their consolation.

Dr. Smith has gone to the bourne from whence no traveler returns; and we shall know him no more forever. Yet his ability, his honesty, his kindness, has made the world better and brighter for those he came in contact with. Peace be to his ashes.

Mr. Moren spoke as follows:

Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the Twelfth Legislature: We have met today to speak of the dead. I am to say a few words for Senator Sam Cameron.

A scene or occasion of this sort is always fraught with a mystery and a sadness when we regard and contemplate the loss of such a man as Sam Cameron, and it is a matter of general regret that this great state should suffer the loss of such a man; and when we think of his death, and of how frail and precarious are our best holds upon human life; how like the grass that grows, then is gone again; and, like the dewdrop on the grass, is met and kissed away by the sun into nothing; we are forced to stop and reconsider; but that seems to be the law of life, and that law we must accept; but, fellow members of this House, there is a consolation in the fact that we are living in the best age of the history of this world. This is the best time in which to live; and it is likewise the best time in the history of the whole world in which to die. Creeds and doctrines and dogmas and eternal damnation, have given way to love, philosophy and hope. We no longer consign the dead with whom we may have differed, to a life of eternal torment, but the worst that can be said of them is that they have gone into an eternal sleep, or that they have returned to the earth and become a part of the elemental wealth of the world; that their goodness has returned to us the bosom of the flowers, and their sighs and music are heard in the rippling of the waters, and their manhood, strength and courage in the lashing of the waves; that is the worst that this age consigns to the dead.

It gives me great pleasure to speak just a word about Sam Cameron. I know very little of his history, except that he was a Scotchman, and came to the Yakima valley when it was a vast wilderness. His energetic hands and fertile brain were in every movement that converted that valley into a smiling garden; the fittest abode for man.

I came to the State of Washington a little over three years ago, and when I landed in the little city of North Yakima the man that was most discussed at that time was Sam Cameron. They were meeting at the various places in that little city, those who differed with him as to what his duty was as a representative of that county in the Senate, discussing plans by which they might secure his resignation, might induce him to change his mind upon certain policies he had been advocating; and so bitter was the attack made upon the man that my attention was especially drawn to him, and I began to make some investigations. From what I could see and hear I decided he must be a bad man; but as I proceeded with my investigation I found that he had only been following the dictates of his own conscience and had voted as he thought he should vote. I found further that this man had a beautiful home, not especially in its physical structure, but a home void of domestic infelicity; a wife who loved him and children who adored him. Then I knew that Sam Cameron was not a bad man. I made further investigation into Sam Cameron's life, and I found that his neighbors loved him; that every man said that Sam Cameron was an honest man; and I remember upon one occasion of having a conversation with him following the attack that was made upon him, and knowing how broad and liberal hearted he was, I could well sympathize with him when he said to me that he did not care for what his fellow-men said of him personally, but that when he returned to his home and found his wife and daughter in tears, he said, "it broke my heart;" and it is said by those who knew Sam Cameron best that he never fully recovered from the attack that was made upon him; and I apprehend, gentlemen, and I believe I knew him well enough to say, that his heart was big enough and broad enough to take the burdens that were heaped upon him and make a pillow, and upon that pillow he laid his weary, feeble and fevered head, and fell into that dreamless sleep, embarking upon that mysterious sea, whose waves have never borne a homeward sail, with those who knew him best saying he was a kind and loving father, husband, and friend; an honest man, loved by his fellow men.

When that is said of a man—when that is written on the hand of the tombstone, nothing can be added.

Senator Nichols spoke as follows:

Honorable Governor and Gentlemen of the Twelfth Legislature: I arise to pay a tribute to one of the sterling pioneers of the State of Washington, Honorable Joseph Foster, of Foster, Washington; who served the state longer in its legislative halls than any other man, being elected a member in 1859 and serving until 1887, three terms in the upper house.

He was born in Hamilton, Ontario, April 10, 1828. At the age of six he moved to the state of Ohio, where he grew to manhood, being apprenticed to and learning the tailor's trade. In 1851 he crossed the plains and arrived at Portland, Oregon, and spent that year in the mining country of the Rogue river and Mount Shasta.

The following year he claim to Puget Sound and took up a donation claim nine miles from Seattle, upon which he resided until death. His most noted legislative service was in the location of the University of Washington at Seattle, and being responsible for its large land grant.

He was a man of large physical structure, clear of eye and uncompromising principles, but of such a kindly disposition that he earned the nickname with all who knew him of Uncle Joe.

It is to him and to the men of his type we owe our greatest debt of gratitude. They were the ones who faced the privations and hardships of pioneer life, fought back the savage Indians, built up our productive industries, called from the east the means of transportation, that we who now reside in the places they have left may enjoy the blessings of this magnificent heritage.

He is gone, but we who occupy the places which he once filled may well stop and here pay a last tribute to his memory, and express our gratitude for the sterling worth of his character and fortitude in framing this greatest state of the Northwest.

STATE OF WASHINGTON, OFFICE OF ATTORNEY GENERAL.
OLYMPIA, January 30, 1911.

Hon. Howard Taylor, Speaker of the House of Representatives, Olympia, Washington:

DEAR SIR—Senate joint resolution No. 5 was submitted to the House of Representatives and received 41 votes in its favor and 37 against it. You inquire whether such a resolution requires, for its passage, a majority of the members elected to the House, as in the case of bills.

Section 9, article II, of the state constitution, provides that each house may determine the rules of its own proceedings.

Section 36 of the House rules reads as follows:

"All joint or concurrent resolutions shall be acted upon the same as bills, unless otherwise ordered by a majority of the House."

Your inquiry involves a construction of the rule above quoted. In our opinion, under this rule a joint or concurrent resolution, in order to pass the House, must receive the assent of a majority of the members elected to that body. Yours very respectfully,

W. P. BELL, Attorney General.

SPECIAL ORDER.

The hour having arrived, the House took up for consideration House bills Nos. 313 and 378 of the session of 1909, and House bill No. 56 of the extraordinary session of 1909, vetoed by Governor Hay.

The communication accompanying House bill No. 313, session of 1909, was read, as follows:

STATE OF WASHINGTON, EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,
OLYMPIA, March 23, 1909.

Hon. Sam. H. Nichols, Secretary of State.

DEAR SIR: I wish to withdraw my approval to section 1, House bill No. 313 and veto this section. I do this on a showing made to me by the chief clerk of the House, Mr. Loren Grinstead, and the secretary of the Senate, Mr. W. T. Laube, and with the advice and approval of the attorney general of the state, who informs me that I am clearly within my rights in this action.

The following is the statement made by Mr. Laube and Mr. Grinstead:

"House bill 313 as it passed the House applied only to the counties of Garfield, Asotin, Columbia and Walla Walla. The Senate made certain amendments, one of which was to strike out the words in the title and in section 1 as follows: "Counties of Asotin, Garfield, Columbia and Walla Walla," and insert, in lieu thereof, the words, "State of Washington," making the provisions of the bill applicable to the entire state. The House refused to accept the Senate amendment and the conference committee appointed to adjust the differences between the houses recommended that the Senate recede from this amendment. In preparing the bill for the enrolling clerks, the clerk of the House failed to remove from the face of the bill the Senate amendment attached thereto, and the bill as now enrolled does not express the final vote of the two houses on House bill 313."

Section one of House bill 313 is hereby disapproved.

Respectfully submitted. M. E. HAY, Acting Governor.

Filed in the office of the secretary of state March 23, 1909.

SAM H. NICHOLS, Secretary of State.

On motion of Mr. Halsey, House bill No. 313 of the session of 1909 was laid on the table.

The communication accompanying House bill No. 378, session of 1909, was read, as follows:

STATE OF WASHINGTON, EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT, OLYMPIA.

Relative to House bill No. 378, entitled "An act to confirm title and the character of conveyances of certain oyster lands heretofore sold in the State of Washington."

I disapprove this bill with some reluctance as I feel that the purchasers of our oyster lands have not received the same treatment that has been accorded to purchasers of our other state lands.

So far as I can find, it has ever been the policy of the State of Washington to retain an equity or revisionary right in our oyster lands. In the act approved March 2, 1895, it limits the quantity of oyster lands an applicant may purchase to one hundred (100) acres, and further provides that if said lands be used by the purchaser in whole or in part for other than the purposes specified, then upon application by any citizen to the commissioner of public lands such sales shall be cancelled and the said land shall revert to the state and shall be subject to sale as herein provided, but not to such defaulting purchaser or such defaulting purchaser's successor in interest.

In the act approved March 4, 1895, which this bill attempts to quiet title to the purchaser, it is expressly provided: "That they are hereby entitled to receive a deed subject to all the provisions of this act to such tract or tracts not exceeding in area forty (40) acres to any one person." And further provides: "That if at any time after granting the said deed the land sold therein shall cease to be used for the purposes of an artificial oyster bed, it shall thereupon revert to and become the property of the State of Washington; and that the same is conveyed to the grantee only for the purpose of cultivating oysters thereon, and the State of Washington hereby reserves the right to enter upon and take possession of said tract or tracts if at any time the same is used for any other purpose than the cultivation of oysters; and the State of Washington reserves the further right to enter upon and take possession of any tide lands sold under the provisions of this act at any time when it desires upon paying to the then owner or occupant the original purchase price of the lands, together with the value of the improvements erected thereon, the then value of his artificial oyster beds and improvements erected thereon in connection with the carrying on of raising and propagating oysters by artificial cultivation."

From these acts, it is very evident that the drafters of these laws deemed it best that the state should always have an equity in its oyster lands. At the time these lands were sold the purchasers had due notice that they would not receive a title in fee simple.

I find also that a similar bill was before the legislature in 1907 and that a special committee composed of nine members was appointed to investigate the merits of the bill, and that eight of the nine reported as follows:

"We have examined the laws of all the states of the Union where there are any natural or artificial oyster beds, and in no case have we found any more liberal concessions made to oyster growers than in the State of Washington. We append herewith a brief synopsis of the laws of the various states concerning oyster lands and oyster culture for the information of this body. We are of the opinion that the present laws of the State of Washington should be so amended as to permit of the use of these lands for the culture of all kinds of shellfish, but do not feel justified in recommending any further legislation in this matter."

The ninth member of the committee reported that the bill do pass with certain amendments.

In looking into the history of the bill transmitted herewith, I find that instead of having been introduced early in the session when the members would have plenty of time to investigate, the bill was introduced in the House on the last day that bills could be introduced—February 23d; that it was brought forward as a committee bill and placed on general file instead of being referred to a committee; was read the second time and third time March 8th and passed 52 to 24; was received in the Senate March 8th, read and placed on general file, placed on final passage March 10th and failed to pass by a vote of 19 to 20; reconsidered March 11th—which doubtless is in violation of Senate rules—and passed by a vote of 27 to 13.

Were this bill to become a law, the state would be forever barred from any claim or right to these lands, and in the limited time I have to examine into it, I deem it for the state's best interest that I disapprove the bill. Respectfully submitted.

M. E. HAY, Acting Governor.

On motion of Mr. Farnsworth, House bill No. 378, of 1909 session, was made a special order of business for Wednesday afternoon, at 2 p. m.

The communication accompanying House bill No. 56 of the extraordinary session of 1909 was read, as follows:

STATE OF WASHINGTON, EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,
OLYMPIA, September 1, 1909.

Hon. I. M. Howell, Secretary of State, Olympia, Wash.

DEAR SIR: House bill No. 56 is transmitted herewith disapproved for the reason that it expressly exempts a certain class of our citizens from the payment of the state liquor licenses as provided for in section 1, chapter 194 of the Session Laws, 1907.

The bill as originally intended was drawn to strengthen subdivision 3, section 248 and section 241 of the criminal Code, Session Laws, 1909, relative to the sale of liquors, and the exemption clause doubtless was added in the rush of the closing hours of the session as an amendment without the true meaning thereof being discovered at the time of its passage.

The attorney general has already rendered an opinion: "That it is unlawful for anyone to sell liquor without first having obtained a license." Therefore, House bill No. 56 is hereby vetoed.

Respectfully submitted.

M. E. HAY, Governor.

On motion of Mr. McNeely, House bill No. 56 of the extraordinary session of 1909, was laid on the table.

REPORT OF SPECIAL COMMITTEE.MR. SPEAKER:

We your special committee appointed to investigate the Fidalgo and Meskill stone quarries, respectfully report as follows:

FIDALGO QUARRY.

We believe that a mistake was made in establishing the state quarry and installation of a rock crushing plant at Fidalgo, but it having been established there, we believe the stockade, barracks, wharves and power houses are located in the only feasible place for them, notwithstanding criticisms to the contrary.

We believe a very grave mistake has been made in locating the bunkers, as a conveyor must be used in loading rock onto scows, at a cost of four cents per yard, whereas if properly located the loading could all have been done by gravity and with much greater dispatch. The bunkers are well constructed.

As far as the crusher itself is concerned, we believe no great mistake has been made in its location. From the best expert testimony which we have been able to obtain, we believe that the plan of working the open face with coyote holes is preferable to a plan of working by means of the glory hole, which latter method seems to be favored by the superintendent in charge at this time. It perhaps would be feasible, and even advisable, to operate the glory hole immediately back of the crusher with a small gang of men, for the purpose of giving more yard space near the crusher. We are of the opinion that a great deal of unnecessary money has been expended at this quarry in development work, which could have been saved had a plan been outlined for the development of the quarry on a more economical basis. While the work is not completely lost, yet it has entailed the expenditure of money for which the quarry gets no credit until the plant is in complete operation. From information and figures furnished by the board of control, the average cost of rock in the bunkers, at this plant, for the months of October, November and December, has been $1.43½ per yard. The total production for the three months above named, was 3,702 yards, whereas if the plant had been operating for twenty days for each month at its minimum capacity of 300 yards per day, the output would have totaled 18,000 yards. However, it is only fair to the management to state that a great deal of the work, during these months, has been development work. The above cost at the bunkers, when added to the transportation charges, makes it utterly impossible to sell the rock at a sufficient price to cover the expenses of production, and we would advise that the control, or the management, under which the plant may be operated, shall proceed to place the quarry and plant in the best possible operating condition and if the cost of production, after operating the plant for six months, can be reduced approximately to 35c per yard in the bunkers, or without loss to the state, we would advise the continuation of the operation thereof, but in the event that this can not be done, we would advise the discontinuing of the operation thereof.

The rock at this quarry is of fair quality for road building purposes, and judging from our own observations and the testimony of those we considered competent judges, we are convinced that there is none better in that vicinity.

We find that one great problem in connection with the operation of the Fidalgo quarry is the matter of transportation, as at this time the best arrangement which can be made entails a cost of 35c per yard from Fidalgo to Seattle, and a further cost of 15c per yard to load from the scows onto the cars. This is in addition to a loading charge of four cents per yard for conveying from the bunker to the scow, and if rock is to be used on any other line of railroad than the C., M. & P. S., an additional charge of 10 cents to 20 cents per yard for switching. The railroad companies have made a rate for transporting this rock of one cent per ton of 2,000 pounds per mile for a distance of 50 miles or less, with a minimum charge of $5.00 per car. For distances over 50 miles a rate of one cent per ton for the first 50 miles, and three-fourths of a cent per ton per mile until the total cost was reached, 75 cents per ton, but not to exceed 75 cents per ton for any distance under 100 miles, and a flat rate of three-fourths of a cent per ton per mile for distances of 100 miles or over. This is for rock to be used exclusively for state and county roads. This charge for transportation added to the cost of production, which at this time is entirely problematical, will, we fear, make the cost of the product delivered on the ground where it is to be used in excess of what the counties can afford to pay, unless as we believe, when the crusher gets to operating at its normal capacity the rock can be placed in the bunkers at a cost not to exceed 35 cents per yard. This means that rock could be delivered, for instance, at Kent, Washington, at about $1.10 per yard on the cars, and at Auburn at about $1.16.

We also endeavored to find what the charges would be for towing to Everett and Bellingham, but were unable to get a definite figure, but Highway Commissioner Bowlby is of the opinion that the towing charge would be at least 10 cents per yard less than to Seattle, and the unloading charges about the same. The price of towing to Tacoma would be 10 cents per yard more than to Seattle.

The above estimates do not include any allowance for repairs or general deterioration of the plant or general maintenance, which must necessarily be very heavy from the nature of the work.

We are advised that the company operating a crusher at Riverton, in King county, is selling rock at $1.25 per yard, f. o. b. cars Seattle, and $1.50 per yard f. o. b. cars Tacoma.

In our judgment there has been mismanagement of the Fidalgo quarry, both under the highway commissioner and the board of control. To some extent this has been caused by the board and the highway commissioner working at cross purposes and not working together for the best interests of the state. We would recommend that the rock quarries and crushing plants of the state be put under a separate head.

MESKILL QUARRY.

Relative to the plant at Meskill, Lewis county, your committee will report that the state has been operating an old plant here which was turned over to them temporarily by the county. The fund appropriated in 1909 for the installation of five rock crushing plants was practically exhausted by the installation or partial installation of crushing plants at other quarries designated before Meskill was reached.

We believe that this is an ideal point for the establishment of a state crusher. The plant is located on the South Bend branch of the Northern Pacific railroad about fourteen miles west of Chehalis. The supply of rock seems, in our judgment, and in accord with the testimony of others, to be inexhaustible and the quality excellent.

While the operation of this plant shows something of a loss since it was started in May, 1910, we believe that it is due mostly to the excessive amount which has been required for repairs and the greater cost of maintenance and operation of a plant which was practically worn out at the time the state took charge of it.

The price at which the rock has been sold was fixed on the estimated cost of production had the plant been in fairly good repair. The board of control on the first day of January raised the price of rock to a point where we believe there will be no loss to the state for future operation.

The total disbursements at Meskill for the year 1910 and up to January 10, 1911, including all unpaid bills at this time, were $22,785.51, as follows:

Salaries of supt. and other employees.....	$5,944 96
Subsistence of employees and convicts.....	4,151 34
Dry goods and clothing.....	1,218 78
Stationery and office supplies.....	254 03
Fuel and oil.....	1,066 83
Repairs	1,414 78
Transportation of convicts.....	679 68
Other transportation expenses.....	342 11
Tools	672 59
Miscellaneous	787 55
Engineers	147 16
Camp equipment	29 84

	$16,709 65
Machinery	$3,436 15
Furniture and fixtures.....	786 98
Permanent improvements	1,852 73

	6,075 86

	$22,785 51

During the same period there has been sold from Meskill quarry:

3,570 yds. of rock @ 50c.....	$1,785 00
10,599 yds. of rock @ 60c.....	6,359 40
5,603 yds. of rock @ 80c.....	4,482 40
19,772 yds.	$12,626 80

Which means if we figure on the basis of the amount which properly belongs to operation and repairs, a cost of less than 85c per yard, or including all disbursements, including machinery, permanent improvements, etc., and all supplies still on hand, a cost of about $1.15 per yard.

The board of control are now selling rock to counties at $1.00 per yard, f. o. b. cars at Meskill.

This quarry is located directly on the route of state road No. 5 and only a few miles from the proposed Pacific highway running from the north to the south boundary of the state. Rock can be delivered anywhere in a radius of sixty miles on the cars at about the same figure that it can be delivered on the cars at Seattle from the Fidalgo quarry. This means that we could deliver rock at all points on the Northern Pacific from Tacoma to Kalama in Cowlitz county and from Chehalis to South Bend in Pacific county, at no greater cost than to put it on the cars at Seattle from Fidalgo.

The demand for rock for state, state aid and county roads in this section of the state is very great and we believe that the output of No. 6 crusher could be easily disposed of at cost or even a profit to the state. With the new plant at Meskill we believe rock can be placed in the bunkers at a cost not to exceed thirty-five cents (35c) per yard.

We would recommend that an appropriation of not to exceed thirty-five thousand dollars ($35,000.00) be made from the state highway fund for the installation of a complete new plant, including barracks, stockade, crusher, etc., at Meskill.

H. O. FISHBACK, Chairman.

We concur in this report: Arvid Rydstrom, James McNeely, G. E. Dickson, J. E. Leonard.

On motion of Mr. Dickson, the report was ordered printed and placed in the bill files, and was made a special order for Friday morning, February 10, 1911, at 10:30 a. m.

Mr. Goss, representing the 45th Legislative district, explained his vote as follows:

"In recording my vote in favor of the passage of House bill No. 14, I do so believing that the measure is one of the few instances in which capital and labor have found common ground on which to come together during this, and also including previous sessions of the legislature of the State of Washington, in an agreement for the promotion and advancement of their mutual interests. I believe that when the record of the Twelfth Legislative Session is written and adjourned sine die recorded, it will be found that this legislature, at least so far as the House is concerned, distinguished itself by reason of its fair consideration of legislation advocated by the working classes, and I am confident that House bill No. 14 embodies the most progressive principles of the age in relation to the compensation of injured workmen in our industries. I have the honor to represent one of the most heavily taxed districts in the State of Washington, but I have yet to receive a protest from my immediate constituency against the pending legislation. Having in mind the mass of legislation introduced in this House in behalf of special interests, it is with pleasure that I vote 'aye' on House bill No. 14."

STATE OF WASHINGTON, OFFICE OF ATTORNEY GENERAL.
OLYMPIA, March 1, 1911.

Hon. Lloyd E. Gandy, Olympia, Washington.

DEAR SIR—Replying to your request as a committee of one on behalf of the House of Representatives of the State of Washington for an opinion as to the constitutionality of House bill No. 176, will say, that this bill provides for the sale of certain school lands for park purposes. The act provides that the same shall be sold under existing law at not less than $10 per acre, but that when so sold it shall never be used for other than parks, streets and boulevards.

The constitution provides that the school lands shall be appraised and sold at public auction, and that the same shall not be sold for less than $10 per acre. This bill provides that the lands shall be sold as now provided by law for the sale of other public lands. The law regulating the sale of other public lands requires that the same shall be appraised and sold at public auction. This law, therefore, complies with the three express requirements of the constitution, viz., appraising, public sale and the minimum price.

If, however, this land is within the corporate limits of any city, or within two miles of any incorporated city, and such lands are found by appraisement to exceed in value $100 per acre, the same must be platted into lots and blocks of not more than five acres in a block, and not more than one block shall be offered for sale in one parcel, under section 4 of article 16 of the constitution.

If the land is outside the two-mile limit above mentioned, then the only question is, can the state sell its school lands for some particular purpose, provided that it cannot be used for any other purpose, and that if it is used for any other purpose it shall revert to the state, as in this bill provided, and in so doing, perhaps, materially affect the price for which the land can be sold. As this bill complies with the three express provisions of the constitution, I am not prepared to say that the courts will hold the same unconstitutional; but if this bill is enacted into a law, its validity can be determined by a test suit brought for that purpose before any money is expended in improving the land.

Yours very respectfully,

W. P. BELL, Attorney General.

On motion of Mr. Beach, the House took a recess.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Roll call showed all members present.

The House resumed the following order of business:

SENATE AMENDMENTS TO HOUSE BILLS.

The motion of Mr. Davis that the House do not concur in the Senate amendments to House bill No. 448 and that the Senate be asked to recede from such amendments was carried.

On motion of Mr. McClure, the House refused to concur in the Senate amendments to House bill No. 228 and directed that the Senate be requested to recede therefrom.

SPECIAL ORDER.

The hour having arrived, the House took up for consideration the report of the military investigating committee.

The report was as follows:

To the Legislature of the State of Washington:

We, your committee appointed pursuant to the provisions of House concurrent resolution No. 2, for the purpose of investigating the affairs and business management of the National Guard of Washington, beg leave to submit the following report:

We have made an investigation of the affairs of the National Guard of Washington, particularly as to the administration during the last two years, under former Adjutant General George B. Lamping, and to the charges of financial irregularities and political controversies and manipulations within the organization, having taken the testimony from the officers, as well as several enlisted men and civilians, and obtained a report of the expenditures and moneys received during the past two years, the testimony having been taken down in shorthand and transcribed, which is herewith transmitted.

The National Guard of Washington is composed in the main of ambitious and patriotic officers and enlisted men. Unfortunately, there are two pronounced factions, one headed by Colonel Matt H. Gormley and nearly, if not all, of the higher officers belonging to the coast artillery; the other faction headed by Colonel Otto A. Case and nearly, if not all, of the officers of the higher rank belonging to the infantry. The former have for years absolutely controlled the administration of the affairs of the National Guard, being able to dictate who should be adjutant general, and having been able to secure for themselves, and for their friends among the officers, rapid promotion and advancement. The officers who were not benefited by this condition were often unjustly superseded by officers formerly their juniors.

Colonel George B. Lamping was appointed adjutant general April 1, 1909, and continued to remain in the office until December 31, 1910; during the entire period of his detail to that position he paid practically no attention to the administration of the affairs of the National Guard; he adopted no policies for its upbuilding; rendered little, if any, assistance to the various company commanders in the performance of their work; established no definite policy as to the betterment of any of the various organizations, and maintained no school of instruction in any department of the Guard. The rifle range at Orillia was abandoned and no rifle practice of beneficial effect was had, and no proper check was ever kept on the equipment belonging to the Guard. Many of the best officers, despairing, gave up their commissions, and enlisted men quit the Guard at every opportunity, and recruits are hard to obtain.

In the matter of the placing of Colonel Otto A. Case on waiting orders, we find that he was in no wise guilty of the charges made, and had always received the highest reports from all army officers.

Practically all the officers of the various companies and enlisted men are doing everything in their power for the betterment of the Guard, and if given proper encouragement will recruit the companies to their full quota and promote efficiency to a higher standard.

Officers holding a position higher than the rank of captain have been for years unable to harmonize their differences, until at the present time there is an irreconcilable breach, which has a tendency to disorganize the Guard. No proper bookkeeping was kept of the receipts of the armory in charge of Captain Denton Crow of Spokane. There was $1,020.55 which had not been accounted for by him at the time of the commencement of this investigation, but which has since been turned in to the state treasurer.

The report of the bureau of inspection and supervision of public offices, which is herewith transmitted, shows that the necessary money to pay all pending bills up to April 1, 1911, is $13,530.88, and in addition to said sum there is retained pay to the amount of $8,809, making a total appropriation necessary to complete the biennial period of $22,339.88.

Your committee recommends that the following amendments be made to the military code:

All officers of the National Guard of Washington above the grade and rank of captain and now on duty therewith, or upon waiting orders, are hereby relieved from further active duty and command and are hereby placed upon the list of retired officers of the National Guard of Washington and will cease to be officers of the active list of the National Guard of Washington from the date this act becomes effective: Provided, That this section shall not apply to the present adjutant general or assistant adjutant general, nor to officers of the medical corps.

The adjutant general and assistant adjutant general shall be required to devote their time exclusively to the administration of the affairs of the National Guard of Washington, and shall not be permitted during the period of their detail to such position to engage in any other business, profession or occupation whatsoever.

That the military board of auditors shall consist of one officer of the National Guard of the active list, appointed by the governor, and two members of the state auditor's office.

That the traveling expenses of the adjutant general's office be limited to a reasonable amount.

That a new system of bookkeeping be installed and that a complete check and account be kept of the armories and delinquent court, as well as all other departments.

Your committee strongly recommends that the appropriation of $22,339.88 be made immediately available to cover the deficit and carry the Guard to the end of this biennial, and that a sufficient appropriation be made for the coming biennial to maintain the National Guard of Washington to the highest possible state of efficiency.

Respectfully submitted.

February 28, 1911.

DANIEL LANDON,
J. R. STEVENSON,
E. H. ESHLEMAN,
FRANK P. GOSS,
PHIL S. LOCKE.

To the Legislature of the State of Washington:

We, your committee appointed pursuant to the provisions of House concurrent resolution No. 2, for the purpose of investigating the affairs and business management of the National Guard of Washington, beg leave to submit the following supplemental minority report:

Your committee recommends the following amendments be made to the military code:

The National Guard of Washington shall be commanded by the brigadier general who shall be responsible for its efficiency, equipment, training, discipline, etc., to the commander-in-chief.

Whenever a vacancy occurs in the grade of brigadier general it shall be filled by the promotion of the senior line officer on duty, of the National Guard, after an examination by a properly appointed board to determine his fitness and qualification for the office: Provided, however, In the event of the failure of the senior line officer to pass the required examination that the officer next in rank be examined.

The appointment of the brigadier general shall be confirmed by the Senate after recommendation by the chief executive of the state. In the event of the Senate not being in session, the chief executive may make a recess appointment of brigadier general and continue in force until the end of the coming session of the Senate or legislature. This appointment shall be permanent and shall be held by the incumbent as long as he remains on the active list of the National Guard.

The adjutant general's department shall consist of "the adjutant general" with the rank of captain mounted and "adjutant general" with the rank of first lieutenant mounted, one chief clerk, one stenographer and one storekeeper.

That the various National Guard organizations will preserve their present organization but will be brigaded and known as the first provisional brigade under the command of the brigadier general and that the various staff, corps and departments will be under his command and all reports, returns and communications, etc., will be made to him through the adjutant general.

That the salaries of "the adjutant general," adjutant general, chief clerk, stenographer and storekeeper will be the same as now provided for under existing laws.

February 28, 1911.

E. H. ESHLEMAN.
PHIL S. LOCKE.

Mr. Goss, representing the forty-fifth legislative district, explained his vote as follows:

“Because House bill No. 407 gerrymanders the county of King in particular and other counties in general out of their constitutional membership in the legislature of the state; and further, because discrimination is made in favor of the county of Jefferson to the exclusion of other counties more populous, I am compelled to vote against this bill. The thirteenth decennial census of the United States, under which this state must be re-apportioned, entitles King county to twelve senators and twenty-four representatives, and House bill No. 407 proposes to deny King county any increase in representatives in either branch of the legislature,

“Believing that the demand of duty rather than the call of political expediency is what confronts us today, and having fixed in my mind the sacred obligation which I assumed at the opening of this, the twelfth legislative session, to support the constitution of the United States and the constitution of the State of Washington, I am forced to vote against House bill No. 407 as submitted.”

“Let the record show that I vote for Senate bill No. 203 because Land Commissioner Ross, at the public hearing of this bill, held in this House, testified that these shore lands were platted and sold with platted boulevard showing upon the maps and plats and exemplified his plats in support thereof; that a great many thousand dollars extra money was obtained for the benefit of the state university, from the sale of these lands on account of the dedication of the boulevard, and that the purchasers were entitled to the thoroughfare. I therefore believe it would be direct violation of the state’s contracts to refuse to allow the use of the boulevard.”

Mr. Goss, representing the forty-fifth legislative district, explains his vote as follows:

“In voting for Senate bill No. 203, as amended, I do so for the following reasons:

“The state platted the shore lands of Union Bay under an act of the legislature of 1907. The plat dedicated certain streets along and through the shore lands. The purchasers of the shore lands have a vested right in the streets of that plat.

"They are entitled to access to the property they purchased over the streets dedicated by the state. The regents have asked to have other streets substituted for the streets dedicated in the plat. This bill carried out that dedication. The university was a large beneficiary under the act in question and it should offer no objection to a dedication that will give the purchasers access to the property they purchased by streets equally as good as those dedicated by the state. For that reason, I vote in favor of the passage of this bill."
